To Whom It May Concern,

As a recent graduate from the University of Minnesota Twin Cities Bachelor of Design in Architecture program, with a minor degree earned in Sustainability Studies, I was immediately drawn to this organization because of the wide range of innovative projects JI has completed internationally that not only serve a higher social, humanitarian purpose, but are also innovative and sustainable in design, all aspects of architecture that I am extremely passionate about and wish to explore further. I would love the opportunity to utilize my design education, experience, talents, and passions in new and exciting ways. I would love to be a part of an organization working to utilize architecture as a tool for helping people and creating a better world for people who need it.

I feel I would be a great fit for JI because of the skills, knowledge, and experience I have gained regarding architecture, construction, and sustainable building practices and principles throughout my education, experience working as a research assistant at the Center for Sustainable Building Research, and current professional experience since I graduated in May 2017. I have chosen to take a year or few off from school after graduation in order to gain some real-life knowledge and experience working within the professional field of architecture, and I would love the opportunity to experience a career in architecture that is driven by people, serving others, and respect for the natural environment. I have always been passionate about volunteering, and working with and helping others whenever possible, and I feel that architecture truly is one of the most powerful tools for doing this, as our physical environments determine the quality of our lives. I cannot imagine anything better than being able to utilize my creative design skills in ways that help to have a positive impact on other peoples' lives. I work well in creative, collaborative team-based environments due to the fact that in almost all of my classes, and at my past and current jobs, I work in groups, so it is something I thrive within. I feel I am good at juggling multiple projects at the same time, also because of my experiences as a design student and employee. I am reliable, organized, enthusiastic, an eager learner, passionate, and I feel I would be a great addition to JI and its mission.

My resume will help to give you a further understanding of my qualifications and past employments for this exciting opportunity. I will gladly make myself available to meet with you at your earliest convenience.

Thank you, in advance, for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Julia Krummel
